ASSEMBLY MEETING WELL ATTENDED

First Regular Session Marked By Long Roll Call and Lack of Ginger

Need of Buying Season Tickets Emphasized---Election to Dormitory Committee

One hundred and thirty-two men answered to roll call at the first regular meeting of the Assembly held in Philo Hall Monday evening, October 5. The minutes of the preceding meeting of last June were read and accepted. Following this an extensive report was made by Mr. Seitz, chairman of the executive committee.

The report mentioned the adoption of season tickets for all home athletic contests, and also stated that it is planned to send circular letters to the alumni asking for contributions to athletics. Mr. Seitz also stated that a tentative basketball schedule had been arranged, and that Mr. Brown had been elected to the vacancy in the managership of the football team.

Mr. Goode reported that one hundred season tickets would have to be sold in order to meet current expenses. To date only about one third of that number had been disposed of. Following this report Mr. Zint was elected to the executive committee.

Advancing to new business, Mr. Ader was nominated and elected to the dormitory committee from the seventh constitutional division. There was much debate when Mr. Goode tendered his resignation as member of the committee from the sixth constitutional division. Mr. McDowell was nominated and elected to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Goode's resignation.

At the conclusion of business Coach Mathews gave a very encouraging talk on football prospects. He urged all men, even those who had never worn uniforms before, to come out to practice stating also that if there were enough out for two teams each night, with hard, faithful practice

KENYON GAINS WELL-EARNED VICTORY OVER WESTERN RESERVE'S ELEVEN

In An Evenly Matched Game, Kenyon With Usual Pluck, Carries Off Honors of the Day---Final Score of 7-6 Gives Alumni and Students Cause for Rejoicing---Victory Over Wittenberg Comes Only After Difficult Struggle, 12-0---Cincinnati Game Recalls Former Moral Victories

For the first time since 1908 Kenyon defeated Reserve on Case Field, to the intense joy of the loyal band of students and alumni who saw the game. Reserve has always been our greatest rival on the gridiron and Kenyon would rather win against Reserve than be victorious in all of the remaining games on the schedule. This year a victory had not been expected but the wearers of the mauve displayed entirely unexpected strength and as a result were awarded a well-deserved victory when the final whistle blew.

Quarterback Eckerle scored our touchdown shortly after the beginning of the second quarter. Snatching a punt from the air he dashed 55 yards through a broken field, eluding practically the entire Reserve team, and placed the ball behind the Reserve goal posts. Stout kicked goal.

This ended the scoring until the third quarter, during which Reserve scored their only points. Kenyon had the ball on Reserve's 15 yard line and, when unable to gain by straight football, attempted a forward pass. Kenyon failed to cover the pass and halfback Denaple intercepted the toss and made a dashing run of 90 yards before Stout downed him on our one yard line. On the next play Captain Englehart carried the ball over the line. Portman failed to kick goal.

Kenyon had the ball in Reserve's territory most of the time but was unable to score again. In the first half Olenberg picked up a fumble and ran to Reserve's 15-yard line before being downed. Stout attempted a place kick and missed it by inches only. Later in the game Kenyon again rushed the ball to Reserve's 15-yard line score.

Both Kenyon and Reserve were weak on offensive but the defensive work of both teams was excellent.

During the last quarter Kenyon was content to play entirely on the defensive and punted whenever they got the ball. Kenyon gained greatly upon every exchange of punts as Stout easily out-kicked Portman and Scheule.

Another bright feature of the game was the struggle between Gayer and Roe, rival candidates for all-Ohio honors at center. Both men played a good game but there is no doubt but that Gayer outplayed his opponent.

Paul Gaines, ex-16, who is now at Reserve, replaced Scheule at quarter during the last half, playing a good game and running the team well.

Our victory was entirely due to the aggressive spirit shown by the team. It was almost impossible most of the time to tell just who got the runner in open field plays. For a few seconds one could see a Reserve man carrying the ball and then the runner would almost disappear beneath an avalanche of purple jerseys. Every man played like a fiend and as a result it is hard to say that anyone starred above the rest, although the work of Olenberg, Kinder, Eckerle, Stout, and Gayer was exceptionally good. Denaple and Englehardt starred for Reserve.

This victory over Reserve puts us in direct line for the state championship and unless some unforeseen accident occurs in the near future we confidently hope to see Kenyon heading the list at the close of the season.

GLEE CLUB ASSUMES DEFINITE SHAPE

Interest Shown This Year Surpasses
That of Former Years---
Material Good

Possibility of An Eastern Trip Creates
Much Enthusiasm---True
Spirit Shown

Having now completed the trying out of all available singers in college, the leader of the glee club has begun to hold regular rehearsals at which great spirit has been and is being manifested by all those participating. About fifty men are turning out at these practices and there is every evidence that competition for a place on the club will be keen since not more than thirty men will be taken on the trip. This means gradual elimination of material which is good but which is excelled by other still better.

An entirely new set of music will be learned this year comprising many tunes in the Kenyon Song Book which unfortunately have been neglected in late years for songs of a lighter and less sincere character. The practice of these songs will be taken up at first in order to acquaint the new members of the club with some care and precision with which all Kenyon songs are to be sung. Following this, music selected by the leader will be taken up and an endeavor will be made to drill each part independently so that a rehearsal of the entire club may be devoted to the details of each selection without loss of time to correct defects in any particular section. Both the leader and accompanist having a full knowledge of music as well as considerable experience in glee club work, will tend to increase the efficiency of the club, and with ample support one is safe in saying that Kenyon this year will have the best group of singers that previous years have witnessed.

The material from which members will be selected is of unusual quality since even among the new men there are many who have had experience in vocal lines and a few have had the advantages of vocal training. All that is now necessary is the willingness of each man to do his part in coming out regularly for practice and there is no reason to suspect that anyone will be careless about this matter in view of the eastern trip at Christmas time.

In regard to this trip nothing definite at this time can be added though there is no evidence to believe that it will not take place. Even if it should be necessary to abandon this plan, a trip around the state is practically assured and to be numbered among those who go on such a trip is no small honor. In view of these facts a complete rejuvenation of the glee club that travels farther than Mt. Vernon is practically a safe assurance.

Chance for Orchestra

Even at this early date there is much evidence that a college orchestra of some importance will be organized this year. Here is a chance for every man who can play a musical instrument of some kind to display his genius and spirit.

Kenyon has had good orchestras in the past years with material of the same nature or perhaps not quite so good as that found in her midst today. She claims beside several violin players, a genius on the trombone as well as a saxophone artist. These men, we doubt not, can produce music of a creditable type, at least, if given a little chance to prove their abilities. There is need, however, of an organizer, one who will assume the head and help the participants to get a definite start. Such an organization would prove of great advantage in connection with the work of the dramatic club or in giving a concert whenever a number of visitors are on the Hill. But one of the greatest benefits would be the mingling of the men themselves at informal concerts given on a Saturday or Sunday evening at college.

Successful Choristers

From the twelve or fifteen men who tried out for the college choir the following men were successful: O'Rourke, Sapp, Platt, Mel-drum and Day. Under the careful direction of its leader, Mr. Wonders, '13, the choir during the past few years has grown to be an organization capable of producing dignified music in a dignified way. The interest shown in the learning and singing of church music by the students who form the choir as well as the benefits derived by extra cuts will keep the choir seats filled this year with only men who have good musical ability.

New Men

Four new men have entered college since the last issue of the Collegian. They are Frank Shoff-stall, a sophomore from Reserve, whose home is at Bellevue; C. H. Platt, a junior from Washington and Jefferson College, whose home is at Mansfield.

W. C. Love and E. M. Wood have entered the freshman class, both coming from Fremont. There are now 134 undergraduates in college.

The engagement of William A. Thomas, '12, Bex., '14, to Miss Marjorie Meeker of Columbus, Ohio, was announced on Sept. 15, at a reception given at the home of the latter. The wedding will be held in June.

E. G. Brunner, '15, of Cleveland has re-entered college. "Doe" is a senior in full standing.

ACTION TAKEN NY DRAMATIC CLUB

Puff and Powder Men Meet to Out- line Plans for the Year--High Standard Set

The Puff and Powder club which was effectually aroused from its long lethargy last year has already shown signs of activity and no one need fear that it will go back to its former state at least, for several years to come.

At a meeting held in the Sterling Room, October 15, plans for the ensuing year were discussed and many matters of business were disposed of. It was decided to hold a try-out in the near future to secure available material for a production to be staged near the end of the semester. The cast for the new play will be taken largely from the list of eligible men outside the club. This plan seems best in order to introduce new material into the club and thus insure its foundation for the future. This year will witness a loss by graduation of some of the older members and it is the intention of the organization to secure enough men to offset the loss. Meetings are to be held about twice a month to discuss the best time for staging plays and to help select ones best suited to the abilities of the material on hand.

The dramatic club is still handicapped by the lack of sufficient stage setting and paraphernalia necessary in every play. The stage at Rosse Hall is a poor place for performing both on account of its not being properly finished and also because the acoustic properties are bad.

Although it is said that a person who can make himself heard from this platform has great speaking ability, this fact does not make it any easier for the person himself. A little money spent in improving the stage and equipment at Rosse Hall would not be money wasted. It is conceivable that the dramatic club will gain sufficient prominence in the near future to warrant such expenditures and as an instrument of the Assembly will contribute its share in advancing the best interests of the college.

At the University of Kentucky, the coaches and athletic committees have made arrangements with the management of State Hall to set apart two training tables for both the Varsity and Freshman teams.—Ex.

Wittenberg Game

In a "sand lot" game of football marked by individual fighting, Kenyon easily defeated Wittenberg by the score of 12 to 0 here Saturday, October 10. The field was in bad condition for fast playing due to the intermittent rains a few days preceding the game.

The first touchdown came toward the end of the first quarter when Vance, left half, circled end and placed the ball between the posts. In the third quarter Kenyon worked the ball down within 10 yards of the goal and Doll carried it over on a forward pass. Both attempts at goal failed.

As has been the case in all of Kenyon's games this season, Wittenberg had by far the heavier team, but lacked the fighting and aggressive spirit displayed by the Kenyon team. Both teams employed the forward pass in numerous cases, but with the exception of the one that resulted in Kenyon's touchdown, few were completed. Kenyon gained the most ground on cross-tackle bucks, while Wittenberg, as a rule, used straight line bucks. Individual fighting characterized the game to a large extent, each man trying to "rough" his opponent instead of watching the ball. To the failure to watch the ball is attributed the low score.

Kinder at left end played a consistent game for Kenyon, and after he had nipped the four plays around his end, Wittenberg tried other plays. "Hack" Gayer at center played in his usual style, and was largely responsible for the failure of Wittenberg to gain consistently. Mahr, left half for the

PROGRESS BY SACRIFICE

Few things of any importance are accomplished in the life of any individual without a sacrifice of some sort or another. Indeed, the statement is doubtless true that "sacrifice is the law of life." A fire in a large theatre entailing great loss of life was necessary before theatres all over the country adopted asbestos drop-curtains; a disastrous fire in a school building bringing death to hundreds of children showed that hundreds of schools throughout the country had deficient fire-escapes and so on down the pages of progress. But of what value is this idea to us who are in college?

Simply this, that in order to accomplish anything worth while in college life everyone ought to be willing to make some sacrifice or forego some personal pleasure to advance the best interests of the institution.

There is not a single activity in college which does not demand time and labor to make it of some account. Everyone knows that a football team would be a failure unless those taking part were willing to devote two hours every day in good, hard practice. Everyone knows that in order to produce a good glee club the eligible men must turn out, night after night and drill consistently. Every one knows that a dramatic club, to produce a production worthy of a name has to practice conscientiously for several weeks prior to the performance. What does it all amount to? It all means work, and work means sacrifice. It means that everyone must put behind him the things which he likes to do and do the things which his conscience tells him to be his duty to do.

To be specific, the glee club rehearsals which have already begun, make it essential that everyone who hopes to take the trip must attend these rehearsals regularly and with promptness. The glory that accrues to the leader of such a club is barely worth the time he spends in getting the club into shape but he is willing to make the sacrifice. The same applies equally to the accompanist who without doubt has much reason to become impatient and discouraged, but here again, his thoughts are not for himself but the club.

As our interests in college life grow larger we must plan our work so that no duty however trivial will be neglected. Wherever our talents are needed we should not spare time and trouble to make them count. If you have talent along certain lines and are not willing to use it for the college then you are selfish and unwilling to do your duty. You fail to see the need of sacrifice and do not become an integral part of the college. Be a living part of student body by upholding your end no matter how small it may be!

At present, it is true, we are congratulating ourselves on the success that is attending our football team and it is only right that we should do so. Our increased enrollment this year is another reason for rejoicing but amid our prosperous condition let us not grow lax and live on enthusiasm entirely. We have work to do, despite our gains, and if dominated by this spirit of sacrifice for the good of our Alma Mater, who can say that we cannot accomplish even greater and more lasting good than anything that the past has witnessed?

"FUNNY MEN"

Nearly every year at college the student body is exposed to a class of men, fortunately a small class, who, for the want of a better term are styled "funny." Whenever there is a gathering of any sort, one of these pseudo-humorous men breezes about hurling forth to the assembled men, sentences and phrases which pass for humor but which in reality are nothing more than silly words and cheap wit. Every sentence uttered by the unsuspecting student is immediately seized upon by the "funny" man and forms the basis of new and interesting remarks, some of which are ludicrous and disgusting. And so the bore continues his easy, glib talk interspersing it with puns until the hearer finally gives up and turns away from the seemingly hopeless individual.

But the chief point to be noted here is not the evil effect upon those who are forced to listen to a person of this type but rather the danger to the person himself. If a man is constantly known to speak in a humorous way no one will pay the least bit of attention to him if he has occasion to say something serious. He has won his reputation as a humorous speaker and is only known by this faculty. Hence the futility of his trying to instill something of a serious nature into people who are expecting something funny from a fun-maker. Thus it can readily be seen why men in public life, where speaking is a frequent task, refrain to a very large extent from saying things that sound incongruous and humorous.

If, therefore, you value your impression on other people and ever expect to influence anyone, be careful about the too frequent jest and the cheap pun. They all have their places and are pleasing at times but one can make a better impression by keeping perfectly quiet than by doing as the "funny" man does when he speaks "an infinite deal of nothing."

SUPPORT THE COMMONS

Two years ago the Kenyon College Commons was inaugurated. This action was not hastily taken, but after a thorough discussion of the question by trustees, alumni, and students. Every phase of the subject was debated and thrashed out, every possible objection was considered and met, until it seemed evident that the advantages of a commons would far outweigh its disadvantages. Its main object and purpose, of course, is to supply good wholesome food to the undergraduates of the college. Our predecessors, however, to whom we owe the commons, had a larger vision and a bigger ideal than a mere restaurant. They looked forward to a common meeting-place for all Kenyon men, where the Kenyon spirit might be built up and unified. The freshmen were to have an opportunity to meet their fellow-classmen, as they could nowhere else. In short it was to be a true Commons.

For two years the Commons has fallen short of this ambitious idea. The fault is fundamentally that of the Kenyon men themselves. They have not supported it as they should. Even though crowded at the beginning of the year there has been a speedy and decided falling off in numbers until at times a mere handful of men were left to uphold this Kenyon institution. Surely something must be wrong. Our "Kenyon Spirit" has been so much criticized of late and often with exaggeration that we hesitate to add a new polemic tirade against it, or rather its absence. But we cannot conceive how a Kenyon man actuated by real Kenyon "spirit" can fail to support an establishment of such importance to the college.

Of course, do not understand us to say that the Commons is perfect. In fact it is somewhat removed from perfection. We all have many individual likes and dislikes in regard to our food and in regard to its service. Each one must therefore give up his pet hobby for the interests of all. Moreover let us remind you that the cause of the Commons' failing in many particulars is the fact that it is not supported. If there were one hundred and twenty men regularly patronizing it many improvements might be made. So to a great extent the affairs run in a vicious circle. Poor service and poor support are interdependently cause and effect.

It might be interesting to note the men who are supporting the Commons. Every senior in college is regularly found at his place. Many of the juniors and underclassmen whose loyalty to Kenyon is shown in other lines are also consistent supporters of the Commons. The freshmen who do not eat there have simply followed the examples of the wrong men.

We therefore make an earnest plea that every Kenyon man consider his duty of returning to the college Commons, if he has left it, and of urging others to return if he happens to be one of its loyal supporters, and we hope that this entreaty may not be barren of results.

If persuasion fails to attain the end we should recommend to the Board of Trustees that they put patronage of the College Commons on the same obligatory plane as residence in the college dormitories so that every man will eat at the Commons just as he lives in the dormitories—as a matter of course.

Because a number of men in college are conditioned in solid geometry, a class in that subject has been formed under Professor Johnson. About twenty men have taken advantage of this chance to work off the condition. The class recites on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons at three o'clock. Anyone who lacks a credit in the subject would do well to enter the course since a condition in solid geometry prevents graduation.

BASKETBALL OUTLOOK VERY PROMISING

Cursory Glance Over Material Reveals Many New Players--Tentative Schedule

With Tyng, Schafer, Gayer and Steinfeld of last year's team, Coach Mathews will have a nucleus around which he may build a championship basketball squad.

Those of us who were in college last year cannot forget the spirited contests that took place in the inter-divisional league. There were many men who showed up in these games far better than was expected and some very good material is now in college.

Endle, Holt, White, Forker and Wise bid fair for good positions on the team this year. Among the new men, McGormley, Kelley, Love, Wood and Van Vorrhis seem the most promising.

The schedule this year is the best arranged basket ball schedule Kenyon has had for years. One may judge from the following, the calibre of the games we will have:

Denison at Granville, Jan. 8.
Oberlin at Oberlin, Jan. 9.
Ohio at Gambier, Jan. 23.
Univ. of Cincinnati at Gambier, Jan. 30.
Ohio at Athens, Feb. 13.
Wittenberg at Springfield, Feb. 14.
Miami at Oxford, Feb. 20.
Univ. of Cincinnati at Cincinnati, Feb. 21.
Case at Cleveland, Feb. 26.
Reserve at Cleveland, Feb. 27.

Bexley Hall, the theological department of Kenyon College, opened with evening prayer, Tuesday, October 13. One new face in the entering class is B. F. Whitman, Harvard, '13, of Cleveland. He with Charles Hull, '14, High Moor and W. C. Seitz, comprise the junior class.

Bexley Hall is fast assuming a completed appearance, but will not be ready for occupancy until about November 1. The most modern improvements are being installed. The building will have ample accommodations for twenty-four students, will contain four large recitation rooms, as well as a beautiful chapel and parlor.

At present the students are scattered throughout the college dormitories and the village. Carhartt, '14, and Wonders, '13, are encamped above Doolittle's store. Classes are being held in the alumni library, and services in the college chapel.

ALUMNI PROVE TO BE CONGENIAL HOSTS

Tender Banquet to Kenyon Men Attending Cincinnati Game--Over Fifty Present

In direct contrast to the gloom which pervaded all after the game, was the spirit and good fellowship which reigned at the festal board of the University Club on Saturday night. Everyone showed the old time spirit and many speeches were made praising the team and expressing confidence in its ability to win the remaining games of the season.

Immediately after the game the Kenyon men assembled in force and, after a short informal session in the smoking room, tramped into the banquet hall.

The feast was begun by singing the "Thrill" and then for about an hour the men devoted their entire attention toward placing the fine viands in the spots where they would do the most good.

After the last morsel had disappeared, Toastmaster Stuart, '02, introduced as the first speaker of the evening, President Peirce, who in a few well-chosen words expressed his faith in the team and his delight at the rapidly improving condition on the Hill.

The next speaker was Dean Harry of the graduate school of Cincinnati University. Dean Harry, although not a Kenyon man in the literal sense, is certainly one in spirit and for years has been an ardent admirer of Kenyon. He told how for years he has been trying to instill a little of the Kenyon spirit into the University and said that he had begun to obtain marked success in his efforts.

Next in order came short, spirited speeches by Coach Mathews and Captain Gayer and then the meeting adjourned to permit some of the students to catch the night train for Gambier.

Throughout the meal we were entertained by a quartette composed of Cincinnati alumni who rendered several pleasing and spirited songs.

After the banquet the alumni, and those of the students who remained in Cincinnati over night, gathered together in the parlors of the club and good fellowship reigned supreme. During the evening quite a few of the University men dropped in and a pleasing spirit was exhibited on

BATTERY "D" AGAIN IN COLLEGE LIME LIGHT

Non-Appearance of Student Members Causes Search to Be Made ---Campus Lively

"I'm through with going to drill. If they want me, they will have to come and get me." At this point Corporal Keicher of Battery "D" entered the room with a warrant for the arrest of Ader, '17, a delinquent member of the Mt. Vernon Battery and author of the above words.

Just a moment before he had thus spoken to his room-mate, he pictured in his mind the men of his Battery, drilling, as they do, every Monday night at Mt. Vernon, some five miles away, while he himself was comfortably settled for the evening.

Simultaneously another military officer appeared at Gunther's door. Immediately there was a distinct difference between Gunther's complexion and that of the other occupants of the room.

In a short time Johnson, '17, was also roused from his bed and these three men with their military escort started to walk to Mt. Vernon to fulfill their neglected duty.

In addition there were warrants sworn out for several other members of the Battery, but somehow or other these men could not be found. Shortly after the detail had left, a fat, red-cheeked member of the Battery issued forth from a warm clothes-closet and resumed his studies.

This unusual visit by military officials of the National Guard aroused the whole college. The students soon became aroused by the military, and shots rang out of several windows while fires were started on the campus. The men, however, who were arrested went to the drill voluntarily and this fact itself prevented any demonstration on the part of the regular students.

The whole affair was war-like from the start and while some regarded the matter lightly there were evidences of a more serious nature from those deeply concerned. The college however, assumed its normal tenor during the course of the night and differences existing among the members of the battery were settled without actual conflict, the following day. A glance at various issues of the Collegian shows that this battery has been marked with many incidents involving Kenyon undergraduates.

FAMOUS TRADITION RECEIVES A SHOCK

"Cannon Ball" Trip Ends in Disappointment---Causes Temporary Delay

The trip to the Reserve game on the "cannon-ball" was a failure this year, for the first time in history. This was largely due to the fact that accommodations for the "financially embarrassed" were considerably overcrowded.

Promptly at 7:30 on the evening of October 2, these unfortunates assembled, 27 strong, in front of Old Kenyon. The walk to Mt. Vernon which followed was of little note, and nine o'clock found the outfit "camping" in the yards at Mt. Vernon, but the "special" did not arrive until two hours later. As there was only one empty gondola in the train everyone clambered into it and silently waited for the "cannon-ball" to pursue its journey.

Just as the brakes were released and everyone was feeling much elated a "brakie" stuck his lantern up over the end of the car and said the whole crowd would have to get off. When an attempt was made to "reason" with him, he said that a number of box-car seals had been broken and that the whole train would be overhauled "up the road." Two of the crowd who had crawled up on a coal car evaded his polite but urgent invitation to get off, only to be ejected farther up the line at Brink Haven. These two together with about a dozen of those remaining at Mt. Vernon waited for the morning train and "rode the cushions" to Cleveland.

They arrived there about 8 a. m., all resolved to take another trial at turning the trick next year.

The Rev. B. H. Reinheimer, '11, Bex., '14, spent the first few days of the week on the Hill. He was accompanied by Mrs. Reinheimer.

N. A. Hallwood, '17, re-entered college Tuesday of this week.

The latest arrival in the freshman class is H. Chamberlain of Columbus. He entered October 20.

The college authorities at Hobart have issued a pronouncement to the students to the effect that hereafter any Hobart student who is known to use alcohol will be debarred from receiving scholarship or other aid from the college. —Ex.

Cross Country Run

Trackmen on the Hill are training hard this fall in preparation for a Conference cross-country run to be held at Cincinnati during the Case-Cincinnati game on November 7.

Every afternoon about ten men, under the leadership of Goodwin, '16, make practice runs over the roads of College township. Several promising runners have been discovered, and the Kenyon team gives promise of being a good one.

The run is to start just before the football game, and the finish will come approximately at the end of the first half. Each entry consists of five men, only the first four to count. It is expected that nearly all the colleges in the Ohio Conference will enter teams.

Collegian Appointments

The October meeting of the Collegian Board was held in the Sterling Room on Tuesday, October 13, 1914. An associate editor from the junior class and six reporters from the sophomore and freshman classes were appointed.

Editor-in-Chief Bailey presided and after roll call he recommended Schafer, Shaner, Jones, Schweizer and Downe as reporters. All were accepted by the Board.

The Editor-in-Chief then recommended R. J. Ballard, a junior, who has entered this year from Wisconsin, for associate editor. Mr. Ballard was unanimously accepted by the Board. After a short discussion of the previous issue, assignments were given out, and the meeting adjourned.

Class Elections

Since the beginning of the semester three classes have met and organized for the ensuing year. As yet the seniors have not elected officers.

The other class meetings resulted in the election of the following men:

Juniors—Axtell, Pres.; Hall, Vice-Pres.; Steinfeld, Sec. and Treas.; Monroe, Historian.

Sophomores — Forker, Pres.; Worthington, Vice Pres.; White, Sec.; Trotterman, Treas.; O'Rourke, Toastmaster.

visitors, showed up the strongest, and made most of Wittenberg's gains by line bucks.

The showing of the team on the whole was not encouraging, and was a disheartening contrast to the Reserve game. Coach Mathews expressed himself as being particularly displeased with the high school tactics in individual affairs.

A comparatively small crowd witnessed the game, due to the threatening weather.

we ought to make a clean sweep of our schedule. Men were also urged to come out for track, and if enough material showed up a track team would be entered in the inter-collegiate meet to be held in Cincinnati on November 7.

Mr. Tunks then spoke about the arrangements for an eastern trip by the glee club this winter. He urged every man in college to try out for the club, as the trip to New York to attend the Kenyon celebration of the hundredth anniversary of Edwin M. Stanton, will be well worth while.

Following the adjournment of the meeting the usual spirit was shown in singing the "Thrill" and repeating the "hika" in true Kenyon fashion.

Injustice of Finnefrock Law Stirs Ohio Colleges at Coming Election

In view of the coming elections in November students at the various colleges are again aroused by the fact that they cannot take part in the elections on account of the passage of the Finnefrock bill sometime ago. The sentiment prevailing at many of the institutions is that the law is unjust and should never have been passed. It selects the students as a class and disfranchises them. While it is true here at Kenyon that some few men go home to vote and thereby enjoy the privilege of citizenship, the majority are not able to do this and hence must forego the privilege entirely. The following remarks taken from the Denisonian give a clear view of this act from the student's standpoint. They are included here in the hope of arousing interest in the coming election.

"In Ohio the right of suffrage has long been held sacred and a discrimination against any class of citizens that will in any way abridge this right or prevent its free exercise is an outrage so flagrant that it merits the severest censure.

The unscrupulous politician will resort to many devices to accomplish his purpose, but there is something reckless and sinister in the boldness that would use legislative power to win partisan advantage by disfranchising anyone who has the right to vote under our constitution. That this has been accomplished by an Ohio legislature and sanctioned by an Ohio governor ought to be a matter of concern to every voter in the state.

The recent movement to discriminate against Ohio students for the purpose of disfranchising large numbers of them has a history. It originated in Hardin county in which is located the village of Ada, the seat of Ohio Northern University and the home of Hon. Frank B. Willis. When he was a candidate for the state legislature he was supported almost unanimously by students who had known him as instructor in the university. Later, in 1910, when he was a candidate for congress in the Eighth district, containing not only Hardin County with Ada and its university, but Delaware County with the Ohio Wesleyan University, he demonstrated his popularity with the students of both institutions and ran far ahead of his ticket.

In Hardin county is also the city of Kenton, the home of Wm. L. Finley and his business and political associate, W. W. Durbin, whose joy at the success of Willis was diminished by the fact that while Willis is a Republican, they are Democrats.

Mr. Finley forthwith began to devise ways and means to get rid of the student vote. The time seemed to be opportune. The state had gone Democratic, Harmon was Governor, Mr. Finley himself was secretary of the Democratic State Executive Committee. The legislature was Democratic in both branches.

A bill was framed to prevent students from voting in a county to which they had come for the purpose of attending "a school, academy, college, university or other institution of learning." It was introduced by R. H. Finnefrock, a friend of Finley, representing in the state Senate the district containing Hardin county. It was put through the legislature as a partisan measure and sent to Governor Harmon for approval.

It reached Governor Harmon and there it stopped. He vetoed it June 15, 1911. In support of his veto, among other things, he said:

"It must be determined whether Ohio, with the high standing in intelligence and education of which her citizens are justly proud, ought to single out students as a class for general denial of the right to vote, instead of leaving each to qualify, if he can, under the general requirements which apply to all citizens; and I am bound to say that this would be both unfair and unwise."

It is said that the veto was not pleasing to Mr. Finley and his friends, but that is another story.

In the election of 1912 Willis, who was again candidate for Congress, ran 6111 votes ahead of his ticket and was elected, although his district gave a plurality of 4697 for the Democratic candidate for Governor. The result was not pleasing to Finley and Durbin, especially to the latter who was the Democratic candidate for Congress against Willis.

With the perseverance of the professional politician, Mr. Finley, now chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, early became active in the support of a bill identical with the one vetoed by Governor Harmon. This bill was introduced by Senator Finnefrock soon after inauguration of Governor Cox who was understood to be friendly to it. On its way through the legislature Mr. Cooper sought to amend this bill in the House by making it apply to all persons who came into a county "for any other purpose than to remain permanently." The Democrats, under the direction of Mr. Finley, voted this amendment down, thus emphasizing the purpose to discriminate against students alone, in punishment for voting generally the Republican ticket and particularly for voting for Mr. Willis.

Governor Cox promptly signed the bill. It was one of the first of the long list of what he styled his "humanitarian and progressive" measures to which he attaches his signature.

What is this disfranchisement law, and how does it effect its purpose?

As already shown, it provides that no person who comes into a county for the purpose of attending a school, academy, college, university or other institution of learning shall vote there. He may come to teach, to preach, to mend umbrellas or to sell bananas, and after he has remained the short time required by law, he may vote, but if he comes to attend school, he shall not vote, even if he remains there three or four years. In this way great numbers of students are disfranchised in Ohio.

It is unfair, and if the students of the state, their friends and those who believe in equal franchise rights for all are awake to the injustice of this iniquitous measure, those responsible for its enactment will yet have occasion to agree with Governor Harmon that it is not only "unfair" but "unwise" as well."

U. of C. 47—Kenyon 0

Kenyon lost her first game of the season last Saturday to the University of Cincinnati by the overwhelming score of 47-0. The game, which closely resembled the game of last year, in that it was played in three inches of mud, was hard fought from the start. The Cincinnati attack was irresistible, Baehr, Gooseman and Fishback hitting our line for distances varying from two to fifteen yards at any time. The heavy Cincinnati line was able to "slide" our team aside almost at will and the secondary defense had to stop nearly all plays.

Kenyon was unable to gain with any consistency through the Cincinnati line, while the loss of Kelley at the start of the game greatly weakened the offensive and defensive powers.

Cincinnati made a touchdown five minutes after play started by steady line plunges and duplicated soon afterwards. Two touchdowns were added in the second and third quarters respectively, and one in the fourth on a forward pass. Old style play was used during the first three quarters, while in the fourth quarter forward passes were tried and Kenyon made several substantial gains by this method.

The game showed us several weaknesses and should not discourage the team any, when we consider the poor condition of Carson Field, and the fact that we were greatly outweighed. Weber was knocked unconscious in the second period and had to be carried from the field. He recovered sufficiently to return after a few days.

Piano Arrives

The new piano given to the Commons by James H. Dempsey, '82, has arrived and is now being used by students during spare moments. The instrument is a Vose make and has an unusually sweet tone. The presence of the piano has already begun to entice men to stay at the Commons a few minutes longer after each meal to sing songs with the new accompaniment.

The freshman caps have arrived and the town and campus are dotted with students wearing green and pink headgear. Instead of taking off the hat to upperclassmen, each freshman must touch the tassel by way of salutation.

Last year, over $11,000 was spent to support athletics at Ohio Wesleyan University.—Ex.

On account of the sudden death of his father, G. E. Olenberg, full-back on the varsity team has had to withdraw from college. His loss among foot-ball men is keenly felt but the college as a whole also has cause to regret that a man with such fighting ability, is prevented from working for Kenyon, both in athletics and in other ways.

Because of the stringency of money and the inaccessibility of paying situations about the university and Ann Arbor approximately 700 students will be lost to the university this fall.—Ex.
